1. What Lawyers Can Teach Mental Health Professionals: Rules of Evidence, Courtroom Procedure and Etiquette, and Terminology

Designed as a “toolbox” for mental health professionals, this institute will be structured as a dialogue between disciplines with detailed legal, theoretical and practical information meant to clarify aspects of the legal environment that often seem mysterious, arcane, or foolish to forensic experts. Topics covered will include, but not be limited to, evidentiary rules, expert qualification, handling subpoenas and the vagaries of expert testimony.

Gary L. Nickelson, Esq., AAML Past President, Fort Worth, TX

Jeffrey P. Wittmann, Ph.D., Author, Custody Chaos, Personal Peace, Albany, NY

2. Advanced Mental Health Concepts: A Lawyers' Guide to the DSM-IV-R and the Use and the Misuse of Psychological Evaluations in Litigation

Which sections of the DSM-IV-R are most relevant to family law cases and why? What are the pros and cons of having your client undergo a psychological evaluation? This session will provide a primer to the DSM for attorneys, highlighting those sections most applicable to a client's parenting and co-parenting. Particular emphasis will be placed on the DSM Axis II (personality disorders) clients, who predominate high conflict custody cases. Procedural guidelines for psychological evaluation will be provided to increase its potential utility in a litigated child custody case.

Plenary Sessions

This program's three plenary sessions will enhance courtroom skills for evaluators and lawyers through demonstration and analysis. The first session will demonstrate how a custody evaluator and lawyer work together to prepare for trial, including the evaluator's review of any relevant literature. The second session will feature a demonstration of a direct examination; it will focus on how to address potential weaknesses in the evaluation report and suggest preemptive techniques for defusing cross examination. The final session will feature a demonstration of a cross examination. Presenters will go in and out of character to provide analysis of what worked, what didn't work, and why.

Plenary Session #1—Preparing the Expert Witness

Robin M. Deutsch, Ph.D., Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA

Ken H. Lester, Esq., Lester & Hendrix, Columbia, SC

2:30pm-3:00pm Break

3:00pm-4:15pm Concurrent Sessions 1-4

1. Understanding and Responding to Parental Alienation

There is much debate and controversy over parental alienation—how to identify it and how to intervene effectively, both therapeutically and through the courts. Children may resist or reject a parent for many reasons. In this session the presenters will summarize the consequences of alienation and discuss how to differentiate alienation from other types of parent-child contact problems, including justified rejection. Highlighting the essential role of the court, the presenters will provide an overview of mental health interventions for mild, moderate and severe cases as well as the legal responses and remedies available.

Barbara J. Fidler, Ph.D., Co-author, Challenging Issues in Child Custody Disputes, Toronto, ON, Canada

Catherine H. Petersen, Esq., AAML Parliamentarian, Norman, OK

2. Parenting Coordination

The hybrid mental health/legal role of the parenting coordinator (PC) is becoming increasingly utilized in custody cases where high conflict continues post decree, thus elevating children's risk of stress and adjustment issues. This session will focus on the development and current status of the PC role, as well as a conceptual framework for understanding its effectiveness in these challenging cases. Discussion of the different skill sets and approaches that attorneys and mental health professionals bring to the PC role will provide useful insights for those considering a PC practice or referring to and supporting clients during the PC process.

Kenneth P. Altshuler, Esq., AAML President-Elect, Portland, ME

Matthew J. Sullivan, Ph.D., Clinical Psychologist, Palo Alto, CA

3. Child Development and Attachment

Attorneys and mental health professionals generally accept that children's differing developmental stages require parenting plans that address the age-specific needs of each stage. However, different psychological theoretical stances often lead to different recommendations. It is important to balance children's location and relationship stability with the transitions needed to maintain important relationships with both parents, and this poses challenges to families and professionals alike. Presenters in this session will briefly review widely held parenting plan recommendations, with emphasis on the latest research and the controversy surrounding overnights for infants and toddlers. Implications for attorneys working with and without mental health professionals will be discussed.

Marsha Kline Pruett, Ph.D., M.S.L., Smith College for Social Work, Co-author, Partnership Parenting, Northampton, MA

Ronald R. Tweel, Esq., MichieHamlett, Charlottesville, VA

4. Psychological Testing in Family Law Litigation

Psychological tests are perhaps the most scientifically-based methodology used in child custody evaluations and often appear cloaked in mystery and misunderstanding. While these tests can be helpful, they can also be misleading and, at times, harmful if not properly understood. Presenters in this session will focus on several commonly used tests, including the MMPI-2, MCMI-III, PAI, Parenting Stress Index and Bricklin Scales. Participants will learn about the appropriate and inappropriate use of psychological testing in family law litigation along with common problems with the use of these tests. The competence of evaluators to interpret the tests will also be considered. This presentation assumes a basic familiarity with the use of testing in family law cases.

5. Domestic Abuse in Separation and Divorce: Implications for Legal and Mental Health Professionals

If your client has been coping with domestic abuse or coercive controlling behaviors, including forced sex, would you even know it? Many abuse victims intentionally mask the violence in their relationship in the hopes of reducing the potential conflict during the divorce process. But unidentified domestic abuse can have significant negative implications for the litigation and evaluation process, so it is imperative that lawyers and evaluators understand these dynamics. Very recent research has led to the development of new tools for practitioners to use in screening for and assessing the impact of such abuse. Participants attending this interactive workshop will learn to better screen and assess the significance of the different kinds of abuse that occur in intimate relationships and develop effective strategies that will lead to safer and more effective practice.

Loretta Frederick, Esq., Senior Legal and Policy Advisor, Battered Women's Justice Project, Winona, MN

John S. Slowiaczek, Esq., AAML Vice President, Omaha, NE

6. Legal and Psychological Perspectives on Child Relocation

Child relocation issues remain one of the most challenging, controversial and heart wrenching situations for lawyers, therapists, mediators, custody evaluators and judges. While the stress on an intact family having to relocate can be significant, the stress on a separated or divorced family where relocation is being disputed is magnified a thousand times over. This session will explore current trends from legal and behavioral perspectives as well as the myriad risk and protective factors involved in relocation that must be assessed and balanced in the context of determining the "best interests of the child." Special focus will be given to helping attorneys and mental health professionals recognize the relevant risk and protective factors associated with relocation cases, helping attorneys consider relevant dynamics to help advocate for their clients, and helping all professionals provide the court with relevant information for a judicial decision.

Philip M. Stahl, Ph.D., ABPP, Author, Conducting Child Custody Evaluations: A Comprehensive Guide, Queen Creek, AZ

Mary Vidas, Esq., Blank Rome, Philadelphia, PA

7. Lawyer's Use of Mental Health Professionals in Non-Testimonial Roles

Attorneys often invite mental health professionals to consult on child custody matters in a variety of roles. The presenters will describe the role and function of the trial consultant and they will discuss the need for attorneys to have a range of mental health expertise available to assist in various aspects of a custody case. Presenters will also explore various roles that a non-testifying mental health professional may play and shed light on some of the controversies over roles that may blur distinctions between appropriate and inappropriate trial consultation.

Jonathan W. Gould, Ph.D., ABPP, Co-author, The Art and Science of Child Custody Evaluations, Charlotte, NC

Cheryl Lynn Hepfer, Esq., AAML Past President, Rockville, MD

8. Biases and Opinion Formulation in Child Custody Disputes

This session will focus on the manner in which biases adversely affect the decision-making process for professionals in child custody and access disputes. Distinctions will be made between cognitive and attitudinal biases, between transient and enduring biases, and between individual and shared biases. Using illustrative examples taken from actual cases, the biases discussed will include the Primacy and Recency Effects, Confirmatory Bias, Jiminy Cricket Bias, Troxelological Bias, Neuman Bias, Imperium Curia Bias, UPAE (Unfortunate Past As Excuse) Bias, Intervention Bias, Coniectura Interdictum (prohibited influence) Bias, Associative Bias, Empathy Bias, Marital Mind-set Bias, and Parental Needs Bias.

David A. Martindale, Ph.D., ABPP, Co-author, The Art and Science of Child Custody Evaluations, St. Petersburg, FL

Timothy M. Tippins, Esq., Co-author, Empirical and Ethical Problems with Custody Recommendations, Albany, NY

10:15am-10:45am Break

10:45am-12:00pm Concurrent Sessions 9-12

9. Ethical Issues: Zealous Advocacy vs. Best Interests

Ethical dilemmas can arise when the duty of zealous client advocacy meets the determination of a child's best interests. What are the rules, considerations, and practical approaches to be employed when it happens? This session will focus on a series of cases derived from the practice of both experienced family law attorneys and psychologists. This discussion will be presented in a "town hall" format and involve the input of those in attendance, in addition to that of a multi-disciplinary panel, whose commentary on these dilemmas will come from perspectives informed by their professional disciplines—legal ethics education, forensic psychology, and litigation.

Cary J. Mogergerman, Esq., Zerman Mogergerman, St. Louis, MO

Prof. Andrew I. Shepard, Hofstra Law School, Author, Children, Courts and Custody, Hempstead, NY

Jeffrey P. Wittmann, Ph.D., Author, Custody Chaos, Personal Peace, Albany, NY

10. How Children Tell What They Know: Improving Your Interviews with Children

This session, intended for evaluators, lawyers, therapists and judges, will focus on strategies for improving the reliability and accuracy of interviews with children. Participants will learn about conducting developmentally appropriate and sensitive interviews through the use of language that children can understand. Interviewing children requires flexibility in protocols as “one size does not fit all.” This workshop will assist participants in understanding children’s answers to questions, reasons for apparent inconsistencies in children’s answers, and current research on children’s vulnerability to suggestion. The impact of children’s linguistic and cognitive development on their ability to provide information will be discussed. Practical exercises will help participants practice new skills for effective interviewing.

Continuing Education Credits

A certificate of attendance will be provided to all conference participants. The certificate will verify attendance at conference sessions and may be used to apply for continuing education credits with the registrant's accrediting institution. A complete list of conference sessions eligible for continuing education credits will be available at the conference registration desk.

Lawyers: Approval for CLE credit will be submitted through The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania CLE Board and the Commission on CLE of the Supreme Court of Delaware. Both Delaware and Pennsylvania are New York Approved Jurisdictions. New Jersey attorneys who take courses approved in another state will receive credit for courses approved in that jurisdiction through reciprocity; however, attorneys must ensure that they are also meeting the requirements of New Jersey's program (e.g., New Jersey requires that four credits be taken in courses related to ethics and/or professionalism). An application will be submitted to The Law Society of Upper Canada to accredit the educational program content for Continuing Professional Development (CPD) for lawyers. For all other states and provinces, a Uniform Certificate of Attendance will be provided.

Psychologists: AFCC is approved by the American Psychological Association to sponsor continuing education for psychologists. AFCC maintains responsibility for the program and its content. The program offers up to 13 continuing education credit hours for psychologists.

Mental Health Professionals: Continuing education approval from the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) will be submitted; however, individuals will need to verify approval with their credentialing or licensing boards. The conference program meets the qualifications for continuing education credit for LCSW's and MFT's as required by the California Board of Behavioral Science.

California Custody Evaluators: An application will be submitted through the Judicial Council of California Administrative Office of the Courts. Once approved, California custody evaluators may satisfy part of the required 8 hours of annual continuing education under California Rules of Court, rule 5.225. The views expressed in the program are those of the faculty and do not necessarily represent the official positions or policies of the Judicial Council of CA or the Administrative Office of the Courts.
